LEONARD ELECTED BASKETBALL CAPTAIN

'Varsity Basketball Captain Reelected at Meeting of Letter Men Held Last Week

Charles L. Leonard, Jr., '23 of Poultney, was re-elected captain of 'varsity basketball for the season of 1922-1923, at a meeting of the basketball letter men held last week. Next season's five will be greatly strengthened due to the fact that but two of this year's letter men graduate, while four of the squad remain. According to reports a host of good material is in prospect in next year's freshman class.

Leonard matriculated from Troy Conference Academy, from which he was graduated with the class of 1918. He played a stellar role in the basketball season during his freshman year, making his 'varsity letter and has repeated each year. Last year he was elected captain of basketball.

"Chuck" was president of the class of '23 during his freshman year and was chairman of the Sophomore Rules committee. He was recently chosen Junior Marshal and was selected as leading man for the Junior Play. He is also chairman of the Junior Prom committee. GEDDES RECEIVES AUSTIN TEACHING FELLOWSHIP

James R. Geddes '21 has received the Austin Teaching Fellowship at Harvard University. The fellowship is in the form of a scholarship which permits a man to do graduate work while spending about half of his time instructing as an assistant in chemistry. It is given to men who show particular ability and has only rarely been given to men in the first year transferring from another institution. Mr. Geddes who entered Middlebury in the class of '22 and graduated in three years, has been doing graduate work here. He was recommended by Professor Voter and Kleinspehn, the former having held the scholarship for two years. Geddes is the first Middlebury graduate to become an Austin Teaching Fellow.

Philians Win Over K. D. R. 3-2

The opening contest on Saturday afternoon between the Philians and Kappa Delta Rho resulted in a keenly contested mound battle between White '23 working on the slab for the Philians while Wiggins '25 pitched for the Kappa Delts.

The game opened with a base on balls to Savitt '25 for the Philians. He stole second and third, and came home on Lobo's single. White '23 led off in the second inning, stole second and was caught on an attempt to steal third. Mayercik followed his singles by two stolen bases and scored when Hellman flied to left.

With two out in the third, Crew walked, stole and came home on Bank's single. The bases filled up but White tightened up and retired the side by striking out Anderson. Doubles by Wiggins and Ratti gave the Kappa Delts another run in the sixth. Farnsworth scored the winning tally for the Philians in the seventh when he singled and came home on White's single. CHAMBER SOCIETY CONCERT PLEASES

Delights Large Audience in Mead Chapel

PROGRAM IN 4 PARTS

Concert Last of Winter's Entertainment Series

It is a striking fact that as one considers the extent of musical literature, with its multitude of masterpieces for voice, pianoforte, violin, orchestra, etc., it is noticeable that with few exceptions the most outstanding work of the individual master has been devoted not to the huge orchestra, nor yet the soloist, but rather to the string quartet, the most perfect of all musical mediums, or to a slightly larger ensemble. Beethoven, Brahms, Schubert, Mozart are some of the mighty ones whom we might use as examples and proofs of our point.

As far as our American musical culture is concerned, we have not suffered so much from a dearth of quartet music, fortunately having had the privilege of the Kneisel's and Flonzaley's, as from a lack of the quintet, octet, septet and others, work of artists, skilled and serious in their message. This deficiency is indicative of our musical culture, for while we know and love the larger works of the masters, we can not call our development satisfactory until we have heard and studied not simply their quartet and orchestra compositions, but also those lovely mines of melody which exist in their chamber music works.

It was with something of pioneer courage that Miss Carolyn Beebe, a pianist of rare power and distinction and a prominent figure in American music founded the New York Chamber Music Society, but the record of 300 concerts in the past three years is ample evidence of her ability and the success of her project. A new chapter in American musical history must be

CASWELL'S HIT IN NINTH BREAKS TIE AND GIVES DARTMOUTH 4-3 VICTORY OVER MIDDLEBURY IN EXCITING GAME

Score Tied When Green Centerfielder Makes Single Which Brings Home Winning Tally

HASTINGS PITCHES WONDERFUL GAME

Keeps Dartmouth Batters' Hits Well-Scattered And Teammates Gather 10 Safeties— Team Shows Good Form

The invasion of Hanover by Middlebury last Saturday resulted in a defeat for the 'varsity baseball team by a 4-3 score which was, however, recorded in the reports of the game as 6-3. Hastings '24, slab artist for the 'varsity, pitched one of the best games in his college career and the team gave him excellent support. The work of the nine on this first game after the practice trip to Boston was very encouraging and gives promise for some very fast games in the remainder of the year.

Hastings Opens With Single

The game opened with Hastings collecting a nice hit, but failure to get the proper support left him stranded on second following Stockwell's sacrifice. Dartmouth came back with a whirlwind of support and Dagostino, lead-off man for the Green tripled, and completed the circuit on Caswell's sacrifice fly to Timberman.

Again in the second Middlebury started off when Daley singled, moving to second on Papke's hit and to third when Drost sacrificed but again they were left stranded on the bags. For Dartmouth, Shaneman's double followed by another from Seavery scored the second tally. But three Middlebury men faced Tracy in the third. In this stanza Dagostino singled, Caswell fanned, Maynard singled placing Dagostino on third, and he came home when Hastings threw wild to Conley.

Blue Scores in Sixth

During the fifth and sixth both pitchers tightened up, and held the respective teams to well scattered hits, the Green finding Hastings for two in the fifth, while Middlebury gathered three from Tracy in the two rounds. In the sixth Middlebury opened fire. Gallagher singled and moved to second on Timberman's one bagger. Both men advanced on Daley's grounder, the latter being thrown out at first. Papke sent a low one down to short who thought better of getting him at first rather than trying for Gallagher at home. This brought "Ripper" across the plate, and made the initial tally for the Blue.

In the seventh Hastings gave the Dartmouth nine a couple of hits, but held them stranded on the sacks. The Middlebury offensive which started in the sixth proceeded and Stockwell was passed. He proceeded to third on Klevenow's single and Klevenow gained second via a theft, while Gallagher was passed. The bases were loaded, and Timberman came to bat. He sent a grounder between third and short, bringing in Stockwell and Klevenow. This ended the scoring for Middlebury.

Dartmouth Wins in Ninth

In the last two stanzas but three men faced the pitchers of both teams,

TO RATE STUDENT'S PERSONAL QUALITIES

Faculty To Make Periodic Student Ratings

Judgment of Seven Qualities To Aid in Vocational Guidance

As a part of the program for vocational guidance at Middlebury the faculty has authorized the deans to secure from each student's instructors periodic ratings of his personal qualities and the first of these ratings have just been received at the deans' offices. The forms which are used are modeled after those which have been used very successfully for the past year at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

Ratings are made of seven qualities which are defined as follows:

1. Personality— Personal strength and attractiveness, impression on others, capacity as a mixer, appearance and manner.

2. Industry—Energy, perseverance, application to his (her) work, and interest in it.

3. Judgment and Common Sense—Soundness of judgment, ability to size up situations, fair-mindedness, tact.

4. Reliability—Consistency, dependability, promptness, accuracy, reliability of his (her) word.

5. Initiative—Creative ability, imagination, self-initiative, originality, enterprise, resourcefulness.

6. Cooperation—Willingness to help and cooperate with others, loyalty, ability to understand people.

7. Native Ability—Inborn capacity, intellectual ability, keenness, capacity to learn.

A composite rating for each student will be made up of the ratings submitted by his instructors and his office rating. These composite ratings will be used in counseling students as to fitness for various occupations, in recommending for positions, answering reference letters after graduation, etc., and should provide a much fairer and more reliable basis for estimating character and personality than before.

HULIHAN CONVALESCING EXPECTS TO RETURN FRIDAY

J. Harry Hulihan, Middlebury's star left-hander, who has been at home ill since the Easter baseball trip is convalescing rapidly and will probably return to college Friday. It is not though probable, however, that he will be able to take his regular turn in the box much before the Junior Week contests.

Opportunity for Underclassmen

The plan providing for a series of short talks by faculty members, devised to give the freshman class a more intimate idea of various courses offered in the college curriculum, seems suited to fill a peculiar need. It is manifestly impossible to give in the few lines of description which the college catalogue allows, anything more than a very broad outline of what the courses cover, so that an underclassman unacquainted with their nature would, in all probability, pass over many which would prove of value to him. Under the new plan with definite knowledge of material to be presented in a course, he will be prevented from that waste of time and energy which is the result of an unwise choice of subjects. They may be unwisely chosen if selected at random, with a misconception of what the course aims to present or through ignorance of the principles which should govern a liberally planned college education.

It is all very well to tell an underclassman that majors and minors should be carefully selected according to individual interests with due consideration for a broad choice of subjects in other respects, but it is by no means easy for him to lay out his course to the best advantage without some practical advice or knowledge. These talks will serve the double purpose of showing him the subjects best suited to his needs and of calling his attention to the necessity of forethought. Too often he has made no plans till forced to commit himself on registration day, whereupon he seizes those courses which most conveniently fit into a schedule. The results may be disastrous or otherwise according as luck is for or against him.

The scheme outlined is a constructive one and should work to the advantage of future classes. Underclassmen can not fail to appreciate and profit by the opportunity it affords.

In Passing

With this issue of The Campus the present board of editors retires to give way to new blood and new ideas. When this paper reaches your hands we will have joined the ranks of past editors whose pleasant duty it has been to provide the college with regular news of its sons and their activities since the first publication of The Undergraduate in 1830.

Our task which we now turn over to our successors has not always been an easy one. It has been frought with disappointments and discouragements—but these have always been dwarfed to insignificance by the realization that we have been performing a positive service in a modest way for the college of our hearts. We are conscious of having done our best, of having striven whole-heartedly in the interests of Middlebury and of having enjoyed the privilege of interpreting her aims, traditions and problems to the best of our ability and with a view to the realization of the largest and broadest interests of the college. It has, indeed, been pleasing to have been identified with such an exponent of undergraduate and alumni life as The Campus has been since its founding almost a century ago and it is not without sincere regret that we let go the reins, though confident as we are in the ability of our successors.

The Campus has undergone a steady and progressive growth that reflects the development of the college which sponsors it. Each staff has made the contribution and the present editors point with a certain degree of pride to the establishment of the five-column paper during its regime. We are glad to say that in its new size The Campus has been able to increase its circulation about fifty per cent and has established itself on a firmer financial basis than ever before. This healthy growth has been possible only through the generous support which has been accorded us by alumni, undergraduates and our advertisers. We thank them all and solicit their continued support for the new board. And to the new board, which will take up the work where we left off, we extend our every best wish for success during the coming year.

VOTE TO INCREASE NUMBER OF MEETINGS

A vote to hold meetings every Tuesday night beginning May 9 for three weeks, was passed at the regular session of the Undergraduate Association last night in Hepburn Social Hall. This motion was passed in order to provide enough meetings before Commencement to enable the association to carry out elections as prescribed in the constitution. Paul Squires '24 was appointed to succeed Cecil Simmons as neutral representative on the Sophomore Rules Committee. Freshman entertainment was furnished by Jack Conley '25 at the piano.

Nominations for officers for the presidency and the councils will be held at the next regular meeting, May 9.

Delightful Delta Delta Delta Dance

Alpha Iota chapter of Delta Delta Delta held its annual formal dance in the McCullough Gymnasium Saturday evening. The hall was very prettily decorated with myriads of apple-blossoms and pine. The overhead trimmings consisted of a central wheel from which extended streamers of pastel shades to the side walls, and from which hung a basket over flowing with apple blossoms. One of the special features was a rustic well from which punch was served.

The college representatives were: Alpha Chi, Dorothy Douglas; Pi Beta Phi, Doris Ashworth; Sigma Kappa, Helen Benedict; Theta Chi Epsilon, Margaret Tomasi; and Beulah Scott. Several out of town guests and alumnae were also present. The following chaperoned: President and Mrs. Paul D. Moody, Professor and Mrs. William W. McGilton, Professor and Mrs. William S. Burrage, Professor and Mrs. Frank E. Howard, Professor and Mrs. Luther I. Bonney, Miss Eleanor S. Ross, Miss Bertha E. Wood, Miss Ruth Graham, Miss Marion S. Roy.

Fitzpatrick's six-piece orchestra furnished the music.

After reading the account of the mild proceedings which this office witnessed one week ago tomorrow, we cannot but pine for the stormy elections of yester-year when winning the editorship of this journal was a matter of days—almost weeks—not minutes; and when used ballots piled well up to the knees of frenzied voters instead of allowing themselves to be contained in the room's modest wicker basket.

After witnessing with our own eyes the installation of a brand new fountain in the downtown soda-water emporium of the Signors Calvi, we have all but despaired of a repetition of that very pleasant occasion on Thursday, Nov. 18, 1920 when the Signor Nat and Signorita Sarah feasted members of the editorial staff on the "best that the store contained".

However, as Ye Retiring Ed. opines, the purchase of a fountain is a quite canny move, for "Now that the war is over, there must be some excuse for high prices".

Nevertheless, one local merchant attacks the problem of high prices from another angle and sets forth with commendable candor the economy of his shoes equipped with "double near soles" at the extremely low figure of $5.00.

SKIPPER III.

PRESIDENT MOODY SPEAKS TO FROSH

First of Series of Talks on "Majors and Minors"

Emphasizes Need of Broad Basic Education Before Specialization

Friday afternoon in Old Chapel, President Paul D. Moody gave the first of a series of talks to be given by the faculty to the present freshman class on the choosing of majors and minors. This year freshmen are asked to select the departments of study in which they intend to complete majors and minors before the end of the college year. To assist and advise them in this, faculty representatives of each department are to lecture on their respective courses from 1:20 to 2:00 p. m., every Tuesday and Thursday for the next few weeks.

Necessity for Broad Foundation

President Moody's talk consisted of general advice and caution in the matter of choosing subjects. He emphasized the necessity of a broad foundation for a life structure that will stand, pointing out the analogy to a great building or a road-bed. He compared the two opposing theories: first, that one should select subjects toward which one is particularly inclined simply because of greater liking for them; second, that one should choose those subjects which are especially distasteful just because they are hard and distasteful and therefore what one needs most.

He said that there was no general rule that could be stated regarding these theories, it being up to the individual in every case. No one should take only those courses which are hard and disagreeable to him, nor should he select only the pleasant and fascinating subjects; but each should endeavor to include both kinds.

He warned against specializing in college in subjects which particularly pertain to the vocation which the student intends to follow.

Wider Knowledge Essential

"The college student should aim to secure knowledge on a wide variety of subjects, not omitting those which he may never have occasion to use in his career of making a living. Only in this way can a person secure that breadth of mind and intellect which marks the leaders of every age," said President Moody in conclusion.

G. E. REPRESENTATIVE TO TALK TO SENIORS

Mr. F. D. Kamerer, of the General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y., will be in Middlebury about May 5th, and will talk by appointment with seniors of any department who are interested in the opportunities offered by the General Electric Company in non-technical positions.

The G. E. Company has for several years conducted a very comprehensive course in business training which is open to graduates of any department who are interested in accounting, financial and administrative activities and who meet requirements as to adaptability. Those interested are requested to communicate with Mr. Kamerer in advance.

PROVIDENCE PLAYS HERE TOMORROW

Witham Likely Candidate to Pitch Against Rhode Island Aggregation Norwich Plays Wednesday

Tomorrow the local baseball season opens on Porter Field, with the Providence College nine facing the Middlebury aggregation. Coach Morey will probably start the same team as he used in the Dartmouth game, with Witham in the box for the locals, Hulihan and Hastings being on the disabled list.

Providence College was the lone victim of the spring training trip, dropping the game to Middlebury by an 8-7 score. Middlebury has a slight edge on the Rhode Island diamond artists and should be able to collect this game.

Next Wednesday Norwich invades Porter Field for the opening of the state series. While very little has been heard of the cadets work this season, they will in all probability put up a strong game. The Providence College game is the opening of a series of nine games to be played before the local fans, ending with the appearance of Dartmouth here on May 29.

The probable line-up for tomorrow's contest is as follows:

Middlebury	Providence
Stockwell, c.f.	c.f., Beck
Klevenow, 2b.	2b., Holland
Gallagher, 1b.	1b., McGee
Timberman, r.f.	r.f., Graham

THREE LESSONS FROM LIFE OF ROOSEVELT

Dr. J. Chalmers Speaks in Chapel Sunday

Describes Roosevelt's Magnificent Struggle for Greatness

Dr. James Chalmers, principal of the State Normal School at Framingham, Mass., spoke in Vespers, Sunday, on the life of Theodore Roosevelt; and upon what students may gain from a study of his life.

Three Lessons From Life

Dr. Chalmers took as his text the verse from Second Timothy, 7:4—"I have fought a good fight". Dr. Chalmers disclosed three essential teaching lessons. The first is Theodore Roosevelt's fight for a physical foundation; the second, his fight for intelligence; and the third, his fight for spirituality. Roosevelt was remarkably successful in attaining each of these three goals. He built up his sickly body by continual physical exercise, and by giving himself up completely to the game or athletic contest in which he was engaged.

His fight for intelligence was also a matter of concentration upon his studies, and upon all subjects of world interest. He developed this power of concentration to such an extent that he was "unbelievably comprehensive in his group, yet minute in his knowledge of details."

Lastly, Theodore Roosevelt was deeply and profoundly spiritual. He carried this spirituality into his love of his family, of his country, and finally of his brothers the world over. The development of these three essentials—a strong body, a comprehensive intelligence and a deeply religious nature, constitute the big combat in the life of Theodore Roosevelt.

Principal Chalmers is a graduate of Eureka College, Illinois, and a fellow of St. Andrews, Scotland. He has held several prominent positions, including professorships in Eureka College, Ohio State University and Wisconsin State Normal School. Dr. Chalmers is the author of "Bible Emblems", and "Oriental Imagery", and the editor of several well-known books used in schools and colleges.

HOLD TRACK PRACTICE DAILY ON PORTER FIELD

The track at Porter Field has been finally put in condition so that now regular practice can be conducted without any set backs.

The candidates have been out on the field daily for the past week from three to five, regardless of weather conditions and under the directions of Coach Brown have been doing some strenuous work. Last Saturday a preliminary try-out in the various events was held in order that some idea might be gained in regard to the best of the material. A more important try-out will be held in the near future when the men for the 'varsity will be picked.

LECTURES ON "LONG TRAIL" MONDAY EVE

Captain H. W. Congdon Shows Pictures of Long Trail and Delivers Talk Before Good Sized Audience

A good sized audience of college students and townspeople attended the illustrated lecture by Capt. Herbert W. Congdon of New York City, on "The Long Trail" Monday evenig in the Grange Hall. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Lake Pleiad Section of the Green Mountain Club of which Capt. Congdon is a member and original surveyor of this section of the trail.

Capt. Congdon's lecture was given in two parts, the first covering the trail as far north as Burnt Hill and as far south as Straton Mountain, while the second showed views taken during January of last year when a party consisting of Professor Voter, Mr. Kleinspehn, Lee '21, Barnes '22, and Capt. Congdon spent several days in the vicinity of Lake Pleiad. Both sets of slides gave views of the camps, the trail and numerous picturesque spots along the way.

Capt. Congdon lectured again last evening in Burlington.

At the regular meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Thursday evening in Pearsons Social Hall a general discussion was held under the leadership of Margaret Billings '22 upon the subject "The Ninth Commandment."

VOCATION LECTURE ON "ENGINEERING"

Macomber Tells of Opportunities in Profession

Instructive Lecture to Men in Chemistry Building Thursday Evening

Mr. Alexander Macomber of the engineering firm of Carver, Macomber, and West of Boston, gave a lecture on "Engineering" in Chemistry Building Thursday evening. Mr. Macomber proved to be a lively story-teller as well as an able lecturer.

"Of late years", said Mr. Macomber, the profession of engineering has run amuck. We have all kinds of engineers from the common civil and mechanical engineers to the agricultural and household engineer. We may even have religious engineers in time. This situation puts students, who have not yet chosen a lifework, in a quandary.

"Two phases of engineering are the technical, and the managing. The technical phase suggests the pure science of engineering. It includes invention, research, and direct application of knowledge. The managing phase, however, opens up a wider field of commercialism. This field is open only to those who have served their apprenticeship and grown up in the business. The important requirement of an administrative engineer is that he be a leader of men, one who knows his fellows and can recognize their viewpoint. He must also be able to think quickly and make accurate decisions.

"The life of a professional engineer is much like that of an itinerant hobo. He moves from place to place as his work demands. A quiet family life is practically impossible to an engineer.

Sums Up Qualifications

"The important qualifications of the young engineer are character, loyalty, and intelligence. In all professions, the leaders are those who possess intellectual stimulus, the ability to use the brain to gain greater happiness. In engineering it is doubly important to follow up the school education with added intellectual pursuit. The average earning capacity of all males in this country is less than $600 a year. Being above that average depends upon ability to keep up intellectual development.

Satisfactory Reward

"The reward of the engineer is the satisfaction of building, of adding a real contribution to universal well-being. The money dividends are not often great. A fellow may start at $30 to $40 a week and rise according to his ability. In no other profession, however, is there a greater chance for constructive, satisfying work than in the profession of engineering.

FOUR TENNIS GAMES ON 1922 SCHEDULE

Union and Springfield Two Home Matches

Holy Cross and Vermont Other Two Matches Arranged by Mgr. Lane

Four matches have been arranged by Manager H. Elliott Lane '22 for the 1922 tennis team. The first of these is a match with Holy Cross scheduled for May 3, which may have to be cancelled if the condition of the courts here will not permit practice. The schedule follows.

May 3—Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass.
May 23—Vermont at Burlington.
May 27—Union at Middlebury.
June 2—Springfield at Middlebury.

Owing to the advancement of Commencement one week, matches scheduled with Clark and R. P. I. had to be cancelled.

The new courts behind Hepburn Hall will hardly be in playing condition before late summer but work is being pushed on the old courts and they are expected to be ready in a short time. With only one man lost by graduation the prospects of a successful season are good.

'VARSITY LOSES CLOSE GAME TO DARTMOUTH 4-3

but in the last inning with Dartmouth at bat, and the score tied, Tracy reached first on an error by Daley, and stole second after Klevenow dropped a perfect throw from Conley. He came down to third on a passed ball. Dagostino was passed. Caswell hit between first and second, and as the winning run came in from third, Timberman made no play on the ball because the spectators crowded on the field. The other two runners apparently wound their way about the bases in and among the crowd and crossed home plate. Consequently the report was sent in that Dartmouth had won by a 6-3 score.

Both teams played a very high class brand of ball, the work of the pitchers being noteworthy. They were both touched for hits but kept them well scattered. Hastings sprained a ligament in his arm and probably will not be able to pitch again until next week.

NEW YORK CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY CONCERT PLEASES

written, to be dedicated to the work of Miss Beebe and her associates, and who can say but that it will loom large in that already wonderful record.

The program presented last Wednesday evening by Miss Beebe and her associates was a distinguished and cosmopolitan one, including works of Brahms, Thuille, Grainger and Hadley.

It has been belief of Miss Beebe's that, provided the musical message were sincerely given, an inadequate acquaintance with even the severely classical repertoire, need never prevent complete enjoyment and sufficient appreciation of the music. The applause which ensued after each movement of the Brahms Quintet thoroughly established Miss Beebe's contention, for despite the fact that by far the greater majority of the audience had never heard the number before performed, so fine in every detail was the Society's work, that a rousing tribute was paid to their artistry.

The Allegro non troppo, written in a characteristic Brahmsian vien, with its heavy harmonies, syncopated rhythms, firmly knit melodie structure and threads of melody, was given with much aplomb and precision of attack in spite of the fact that the musicians were somewhat hampered by the inadequate lighting facilities and a slight reverberation. The second movement, an Andante was probably the most exquisitely rendered number of the entire concert. The tone color of the combined instruments was gorgeous in its heavy richness of quality and lent exactly the right atmosphere to the somewhat spiritual character of the piece. It was with a very evident reverence that the artists gave us their message. The Scherzo was permeated with such a vivacious lilt and infectious accent that the joyful and happy contrast to the preceding number was adequately sensed.

Thuille's "Sextet", a lighter piece of the modern school was an example of what a musician can accomplish in the way of romantic sentiment and modernity of harmony without producing a cacophony of form and music which so many composers think necessary. The versatility of the Society was well demonstrated by the manner of their interpretation, entering as they did, completely into accord with the spirit of the composition.

The Grainger numbers were adapted by the composer himself for use by the New York Chamber Music Society, and are its exclusive property. That his confidence in their art was well founded could hardly be disputed, for there was such vigor and jollity, delicacy and infectious humor in their interpretation that Grainger, could he have heard, might have realized new possibilities in the works.

For encores Grainger's "Molly on the Shore", Piernes "March of the Tin Soldiers", and Hadley's "Scherzino", were used, much to the delight of the audience.

It was altogether fitting that the New York Chamber Music Society, one of the best organizations of its kind in the world, should bring to a close such a distinguished series of entertainments as has been presented at Middlebury this year. Every member of the group was an artist, their ideal was perfection and their aim of the noblest, naturally, as is the way, their sincerity was well rewarded.

When H_2O Isn't Water

"GENTLEMEN" said the Chem. Prof., at the end of the term, "You'll probably remember only one thing of all I've tried to teach you. And that is that Water is H_2O —and then you'll be wrong."

Even shaving soap isn't always shaving soap. A correct shaving preparation like Williams' Shaving Cream must do a lot more than simply make a lather.

—It must be generous with its lather. It must be thick and creamy in cold water or hot.

—It must hold its moisture. Williams' will not "freeze" dry on your face.

—It must soften your beard right down to the very roots.

—It must prepare your face for quick, gentle shaving. Williams' is so pure and wholesome that it actually helps the most tender skin.

Try it— tomorrow before chapel.
